6. Project objectives as approved by DBT:

- To set up a technical consultancy consortium and agroclinic team to promote women entrepreneurs in the farming sector.
- To disseminate, popularise and support women friendly agrobiotechnologies and generate capacity for employment among rural women
- To provide intensive training to 131 women on the technical and managerial aspects of various agrotechniques
- To serve as a capacity building cum counselling centre for women in S &T

7. Achievements of the project (in brief)

- A network consortium of women entrepreneurs involved in agro biotechnology based enterprises, agencies promoting women run enterprises, input agencies, banking agencies, training agencies, scientists working on women friendly technologies, marketing agencies, rural innovators/ technologists, SHGs, Farmer Societies, NGOs etc. of Central Kerala with focus on Thrissur District could be evolved. Through stakeholder meetings of this network the major issues of women involved in agrobased enterprises are flagged and approaches programmes and policy changes from the agencies are being advocated

- Three field level demonstration units on women run farm enterprises could be supported and showcased as role model units of flower cultivation, vermicomposting and tissue culture lab. (details provided on pages with illustrations 7, 8 and 9). Field level demonstration units were supported with infrastructure facilities like green house, hardening unit, potting sheds, photo blow ups, display materials of women friendly technologies, cool chamber, white boards, lab lightings etc.
- Nine intensive technology cum managerial skill workshops of (one/ two months duration) were organised to train 131 farm women youth on three identified areas of farm enterprise – (1) flower cultivation and business management (2) vermicomposting and business management and (3) tissue culturing and business management. Out of the 132 participants who have undergone intensive training 60 participants have initiated new enterprise units while 15 participants have utilised the knowledge gained in running their existing enterprises more efficiently. (Success case are cited on page 10,11, 12, 13, 14, and 15).
- Thirty six field agroclinics could be conducted for farm women on topics like Floriculture, Vermicomposting, mushroom cultivation, mushroom recipies, bee keeping, flower arrangement, foods processing, medicinal plants, SHG formation, plant protection in Floriculture, poultry farming, ornamental fish, goat rearing, cashew apple processiong, anthurium cultivation and quail rearing and a total number 1177 farm women were reached through these programmes. (Success cases of participants are cited on page 19, 20, 21 and 22.)
- Agroclinic and women farmers counselling facility in the project office was constituted with the team support of experts from multidisplinary divisions of KAU and support service agencies in Central Kerala (list of members who have served in committee for various clinics are provided in the appendix). Direct service through field agroclinics and support from the office desk of CSGCA also could be provided.
- Village level study could be conducted in two selected Panchayath Wards to identify constraints of farm women in agro based enterprises and assess the extent of participation of farm women in agrobased enterprises.
- One approach paper cum policy brief on the problems and issues of empowering farm women, farm based enterprises could be published.
- A documentary film on the women friendly farm based enterprises and success cases of farm entrepreneurs of the project could be developed for utilisation in the future technology popularisation programmes.

- 14 scientists of KAU were motivated and supported to submit project proposals on topics of women empowerment to the DBT and of these four projects were initiated on approval by DBT.
- Pre and post project assessment about the technology utilization and enterprise startups among the participants of the intensive trainings, agroclinics and documentation units were conducted through evaluation studies.
- A Monitoring and Evaluation Committee was constituted with Dr. Mridul Eapen (Fellow, Centre for Development Studies, Trivandrum), Dr. Sudha Nair, (MSSRF), Dr. Bharathi – Growmore (Biotech Ltd), Dr. Chandradutt (COSTFORD), Sri. Jayamohan, DGM, NABARD, Director of Research, KAU, and Project Co-ordinator, CSGCA, KAU. One review meeting of the above committee was held in 2006 and the committee made field visit to the demonstration plots. Later on, the PI had been informing and consulting with the above members on the important events of the meeting. More over the local members of the committee (from COSTFORD, NABARD and KAU) had always participated in the important events of the project.
- Extended follow up support for promoting utilization training by the participants is being provided from CSGCA. The participants of the various programmes are being contacted and supported with technical and institutional support in post training and post project period through field visits and online enquires. Contact programmes of the participants, and escorting support for contact with financial, input and marketing services etc are also being extended from CSGCA, KAU.
- Efforts to motivate women scientists who have had a break in their scientific career to the science and technology mainstream, were also undertaken on part of the project. Wide publicity of DST's programme for this purpose from this Centre was given and a number of scientists were encouraged to present projects under this programme of DST from KAU.
- A number of orientation classes to the graduating women students/ of traditional colleges/ schools were conducted as part of promotion of agrobiotechnology based livelihood promotion by the PI as part of the project.
- Organised a national workshop on 'Women friendly technologies' in collaboration with Swadeshi Science Movement, on 20th -22nd January 2005 at Cochin, Kerala.
- Brainstorming sessions on Women friendly technologies was organised from the project to bring about policy changes to improve support services of various agencies to improve women empowerment programmes on 4th March 2005.

- PI of the project participated in a number of a national and state level agro technology promotion programmes like Agricultural Science Congress, Hyderabad; MSSRF, Chennai, Drudgery Reduction Seminar of Rice research Station, Orissa, Entrepreneurship Development Conference of EDI, Ahemadabad etc and a number of scientific and popular publications also were brought as part of the project

8. Deviation if any from the project objectives and reasons thereof:

Since a very the reduced budget amount only was sanctioned against the originally requested budget in the revised proposal under the training, the number of trainees per training programme had to be limited to fifteen per batch against the originally proposed number of twenty. Hence totally 135 rural women only were targeted for intensive training against the original target of 180 and this was informed to DBT through previous report and presentation. And during the conduct of the training 131 only had successfully completed the training (three participants originally selected could not continue due to personal reasons)

9. Details of Field demonstrations laid out under the project (size of plot, crops, beneficiaries and field photographs):

Three field units of agro biotechnologies run by rural women groups were supported as field demonstration units from the project- (1) Vanitha Pookrishi Vikasana Samithi, Perinjanam, (2) Vanitha Pushpakrishi Samrakshana Samithi, Nattika and (3) ABARD Vermicompost unit, Mannuthy.

1. Vanitha Pookrishi Vikasana Samithi, Perinjanam

This women run flower cultivation group has been functioning since 1998 in the Perinjanam Panchayath of Thrissur District and there are 76 members. The major activities of the unit are cultivation of bush jasmine in their homesteads, collection of flower buds, value addition of flowers as garlands, flower arrangements, marketing, nursery management of flower plants and production of vermicompost. As part of the DBT project intervention the unit was provided with a greenhouse unit for keeping the nursery plants, a cool chamber and weighing balance for collection and marketing of flowers under this scheme. In addition to the above infrastructure facilities, ten agroclinics on various topics in Perinjanam were arranged for the benefit of the members of the society. Details about the project support and related photo blow ups of women friendly technologies are displayed in the site and the office bearers are expected to provide guidance and orientation to visitors and other farmers who visit them.

Teaching aids like white board and marker pen are also provided to facilitate their group learning activities. Using the agroclinics on flower and plant production, plant protection, and training on value addition of flowers, the women participants of the society were able to produce more flowers, bring value addition to the flowers – they are able to sell their produce as garlands, flower bouquets, arrangements, hall decoration etc; they produce and sell seedlings of the plants like jasmine, anthurium also. The new activity groups for taking avenues like goat, mushroom, rabbit, quail, saree designing etc are promoted among the group members and four activity groups are formulated accordingly. Members of this demonstration unit also are supported in every year for field visits to the campuses of agricultural university and farms of agricultural department for gathering new information and planting materials of flower business. The society is also motivated to take up increased production target, export market, flower oil extraction, group marketing and alternate income generating activities through agroclinics and contact programmes of bank and marketing agencies. This unit is being served as a model unit of the technology and collective marketing of jasmine flower. Large number of visitors- farmers, women group and scientists visit and learn about the group from the unit. Local dailies and Television channels have many times, reported the activities of the unit and the members have won many awards of flower related competitions.

2. Demonstration unit- Vanitha Tissue Cultural Lab and Vanitha Pushpakrishi Samrakshana Samithi, Nattika-

This Samithi is working since December 1997 and there are 75 members in the Samithi. Cultivation of anthurium and orchids, collection & value addition of flowers, production & marketing of tissue culture plantlets of orchid, anthurium and banana are their group activities.

As part of the DBT Project, the samiti is provided with, a hardening shed for hardening the plantlets produced in the Tissue Culture lab and lighting facilities of culture room during the first year of the project. In addition to this infrastructure, technical support through four agroclinics was also provided in the Panchayath for the Samithi members. Name board detailing about the project support and photo blowups of women friendly agro bio technologies are placed in the site and the office bearers are expected to provide technical orientation to the visitors and farmers. Teaching aids like white board and marker pens are provided to facilitate group-learning efforts among the members. The group has been serving as a model unit of women's initiative in the scene of tissue culture plant material production. Currently in addition to plantlet production of banana, the members have taken up flower cultivation, flower value addition, mushroom cultivation with the support of this DBT project. The unit could receive and orient a large number of visitors from farmer groups, trainees, students and Agricultural Departments during the last three years.

3 ABARD Vanitha Vermicomposting unit, Mannuthy

This group was set up in December 2000 with seven members. This unit is engaged in the production and sale of vermicompost on commercial basis in Mannuthy. This group was supported to develop as a demonstration cum sale point with a small vermicomposting shed from the support of the DBT project. This unit was supported with training and value addition expertise. Photo blowups of women friendly technologies are also set up in this unit. The unit was also supported with biogas unit and quail rearing agencies. Large numbers of visitors to KAU campus are served with this on site demonstration of vermicomposting unit and various compost products are provided to the public from the sale unit. The unit is also serving as a venue of training on vermicomposting from Kerala Agricultural University.

a. Success cases of skill/ cum managerial training

(a) Floriculture Business Management

1. Kochu Thresia, Kannara, Thrissur is a house wife of managerial income group and had participated in the vermicomposting and floriculture training under the project. She has started floriculture unit of bush jasmine (150 members) and anthurium (150 members). The plants are reaching flowering stage and market is yet to be established. She together with her neighbour who was also a participant of the training has set up a vermicomposting and coir composting unit from which she is able to earn a monthly income of Rs. 200/- through selling of the composite to local farmers.

2. Rajina Sanil and Jeeva Anil of Nadathara are two housewives of marginal income group who had undergone the Floriculture business management training of the project. They have initiated a unit of anthurium flower production on group basis and have developed a tie up for marketing of the flowers with a local marketing agency.

3. Hija Bidesh of Parapukkara a housewife of middle income group, has started a unit of anthurium cultivation (600 member) after participating in the floriculture business management training of the project. Since 2003 she has been running units of orchid (650 members) and bush jasmine (1000 plants). She appreciates the training for improving her knowledge and managerial efficiency. She has participated in the flower arrangement training of the project also. Her monthly income from flower business is around Rs. 4500/-

4. Janet Johnson of Chelakkottukara, Thrissur is a housewife of a middle income family. After participating in the floriculture training of the project, she has started a unit of anthurium with 600 plants and formed a 12 member flori club in her locality. She has initiated group based marketing of flowers and earns an income of Rs. 600 per month. She has gained skill in flower arrangement also.

5. Leni Chako, Nehru Nagar, Thrissur an unemployed housewife of middle income family had attended the flower business management training of the project and has initiated cultivation of anthurium, orchid, gladiolus and ornamental flowers. More over she has set up a florist shop in her house premise from which she is selling flower arrangement for offices, marriages, public functions etc. She has also started to function as resource person for flower arrangement classes for other women in Thrissur.

(b) Tissue culture Business Management Training

6. Mini Baiju, aged 35, a housewife of a marginal income family, in Peechi, Thrissur had participated in the training of Tissue Culture, Floriculture and Vermicomposting. She has utilised the tissue culture training for setting up a hardening unit of tissue culture plantlets and she has entered into a buy back arrangement for hardening of plants with a private tissue culture lab in Alwye. She has also set up a unit of anthurium flower production (200 number), and a unit of vermi and coir pith composting together with her neighbour on group basis.

7. Kusumam Gopalakrishnan, Nattika aged 48, is a housewife of Nattika in Thrissur and Secretary of the Nattika Tissue culture Lab. She has participated in the Tissue culture business management training of the project and she has utilised the knowledge and skill for increased involvement in the tissue culture lab activities and for setting up a hardening unit of tissue culture plants as part of the tissue culture lab on group basis. She has units of orchids, anthurium and bush jasmine flowers at her home and she sells flowers as flower arrangements also. She earns about Rs.400 per month from the activities and she has won many prizes of flower arrangements in district level flower shows.

8. Sibitha an unemployed graduate of Vellangalore, Thrissur was a participant of the tissue culture Business Management of the KAU-CSGCA DBT project. She could not initiate a tissue culture lab, but together with two other women have set up a production unit of biocontrol agents (pseudomonas, trichoderma etc) and mushroom spawn production and they have plan to expand the present unit to have facilities of tissue culture plant production.

9. Dolly and Nitha Santhosh are two housewives of low income families in Mannuthy, Thrissur. On getting training on tissue culture, business management from CSGCA-DBT project. They are in an effort of setting up a tissue culture lab. They have ensured market arrangements with local farm nurseries.

(c) Vermicompost Business management training

10. Mary Scaria and Vanaja Sasi two house wives of marginal income families in Madakkathara Panchayath in Thrissur. During 2004 they had undergone the vermicompost production training of CSGCA - DBT project and Mary and Vanaja have set up a vermicompost production unit and coir pith compost units. They are able to earn an average Of Rs. 1500 / from the unit. They are selling the products to local farmers and research projects of KAU.

11.Sarojini Vasu and Stella Vincent in Kundukad Panchayath of Thrissur district had started a vermicomposting unit after attending the training of CSGCA – DBT . She has set up 5 tanks for vermicompost production and coir pith compost production. In a month she is able to produce about 250 kg compost per month and earn around 1300 per month. She is selling the produce to the local farmes.

12.Smt. Jayasree, housewife of marginal income group Mannuthy, Thrissur had undergone the vermicompost production training of CSGCA – DBT. She has set small production unit of vermicompost production, which she is utilizing for household plants

a) Success cases of beneficiaries agro clinic cum demonstration units

- Vijayalakshmi and Jaya Pushpangadan are two farm families in Nattika and a member of the Nattika Women Tissue Culture Lab and Flower Society. 2001 onwards they are engaged in Floriculture (of anthurium plants). They are regular participants of the agroclinics of CSGCA-DBT project and have utilised the technical guidance and consultation received from the programme for the better running of their business.

- Usha Jayakumar a school teacher of Perinjanam is a member of the Perinjanam Women flower society and participant of CSGCA-DBT AGROCLINICS. She has utilised the guidance of the agroclinics in running her agrobusiness of chicken, quail, duck and floriculture.

3. Viju Viswam a member of the women flower society of Perinjanam Society was a regular participant of the agroclinics of CSGCA.DBT during 2004-2007. With the technical guidance obtained through the project she is able to conduct her units of anthurium and bush jasmine (in gunny bags on terrace of her house) very effectively and she has recently set up a new unit of mushroom production in her homestead. She sells flowers and planting materials of anthurium, bush jasmine and earns around Rs. 3000 per month.

4. Kausalya Padmanabhan, house wife of a small farm family in Perinjanam has participated in all agroclinics of CSGCA-DBT project. She could utilise the training for managing her anthurium plants, vermi compost production and rabbit rearing. On getting motivated through the agroclinics she has recently set up a unit of goat rearing (one adult and two kids). She can fetch Rs. 1000/ each for a kid on selling after 5 months growth.

5. Prasanna Peethambaran, a participant of agroclinics of CSGCA-DBT project set up a unit of oyster mushroom production and earn Rs.6000 per month. She sells the mushroom through the Perinjanam flower Society. She has recently initiated the cultivation of milky mushroom also.

6. Ajitha Sidharthan, a regular participant of the Agroclinic of CSGCA-DBT project has taken up a unit of quail rearing and earns around Rs.700 per month. As member of the Perinjanam Flower Society, she grows bush jasmine and is earning Rs. 2000 per month.

7. Sathi Chandragupthan, president of the Womenflower society of Perinjanam and grows 180 bush jasmine plants, and 1000 anthurium plants in her homestead. She has utilised the exposure of agroclinics to manage these units in a better way and to take up selling of flower arrangements for additional income. She has a vermi composting unit which is utilising as manure for her own plants. She is able to earn around Rs.6000 in a month from all these units.

8. Pushpa Aravindan of Perinjanam unit has initiated goat rearing and a small poultry unit as income generation activity after participation in the agroclinics of the CSGCA-DBT project. In an year she was able to sell 10 goat kids (income Rs.1000/ kid.) She grows bush jasmine, and earns Rs.2500/ month by selling the flowers through the women flower society, Perinjanam and earn Rs.300/ in a month by selling eggs.

12. Steps taken to sustain the activities after the DBT funding is over:

Through training and agroclinics, the farmwomen are motivated to start their own agribusiness units. They are being continuously monitored and motivated through follow up meetings, telephone contacts, contact meetings, escorting to input support agencies, field visits and timely technical advises. In addition to these, they were connected with credit institutions, technical experts and extended support to establish marketing linkages through appropriate networking. A network utilisation meeting of the project participants and other stakeholders of women empowerment were organised from this centre. Network of stakeholders for providing extended support to the participants of the various activities initiated through the project are developed. As part of this the participants of the various programmes are being contacted, and supported with technical and institutional support from the CSGCA office.

- Two village studies on the problems of women agro business units with focus on rural women's employment in agriculture were taken up for future plan of action development. The observations are being utilised for programmes, plan of action, and project proposal development.
- One day brainstorming on women friendly technologies was organised to facilitate policy changes to be brought up at state and national level.
- Monitoring & Evaluation Cell was set up for evolving better criteria of project implementation for women development through agro biotechnology. The help of this cell will be utilised in future also for better project implementation.
- Promotion and projection of the performance of the above models in various seminars and media being done.
- The participants will also be reached and support extended through other programmes of CSGCA.
- Measurement of empowerment and associated impacts among women as a result of the technological support will be taken from this as a follow up in future.
- The Centre has appealed before agencies like Planning Commission, Planning Board, NABARD, State Govt.etc are persuaded to set up Panchayath level Marketing facilities for women groups.

13. Summary of the progress (not more than 200 words):

The project was utilized for promoting women friendly technologies among rural women with focus on floriculture, tissue culture and vermi composting. Nine skill training programmes (one/two months long) of the project could train 131 rural women on the technologies cum managerial skills of agribusiness of floriculture/ tissue culture/ vermi composting. Thirty nine agroclinics conducted as part of the project could focus on the field level problems, managerial problems etc of the technologies like floriculture, composting, vegetable cultivation, honey bee, rabbit rearing, flower arrangements, etc. and could reach 1116 number of participants. Three women run group initiatives of flower production/tissue culture material production/were supported with technical guidance and selected infrastructure to showcase the units as demonstration units of women's possibilities in agribusiness. An agroclinic team with scientists and support services had been set up for the technical / managerial counselling of rural women entrepreneurship as part of the project. Agrobiotechnology promotion was carried out through programmes of orientation classes, agroclinics, trainings, counseling for women entrepreneurs, conduct of seminars, workshops, brainstorming sessions, orietation classes for women scientists, students of traditional colleges and schools etc. Public relation and publicity for the project activities also were attained through publications, audio visual materials, documentary, film etc. A network of the project participants, extension agencies, markeing agencies, support service agencies etc is also set up for extending support in the post phase period.

“ Women Empowerment Networking In Kerala Through Science & Technology” from 12.1.04 to 30.9.05

SUMMARY

The DBT project on Women Empowerment Networking in Kerala through Science and Technology was sanctioned on 12th January 2004 with a financial outlay of 26.74 lakhs. The project aims at providing technical advisory services to farmwomen and women entrepreneurs as well as popularisation and dissemination of women friendly agrobiotechnologies through intensive training programmes and monthly agroclinics. A consultancy consortium for conducting the agroclinic at institutional level and field level was formed during the first year. Through this unit, 20 agroclinics were organised during the project period (March 2004-September 2005) implementation. A Monitoring and Evaluation Committee with renowned experts in the field of biotechnology, women development and NGO was constituted for assessing and guiding the project implementation. With the objective of technical empowerment of unemployed farmwomen in women friendly agro biotechnologies such as vermicomposting, tissue culture, floriculture and their business management comprehensive training curriculum are formulated and target groups are identified. Basic minimum infrastructural facilities were provided to set up three field level demonstration units in the above-identified technologies. A benchmark survey about the socio-economic profile of the members in the demonstration units was completed. Forty-five farmwomen were equipped with technical and managerial expertise for setting up units in the field of vermicomposting, floriculture and tissue culture on commercial scale through intensive training programmes. Forty five potential women entrepreneurs are identified for current year's training programme. A national workshop on women friendly technologies was organised in collaboration with Swadesi Science Movement, during 20-22nd January 2005 at Kochi and a brainstorming discussion on women technology was organised in Kerala Agricultural University during 4th March 2005 with the various stakeholders. Orientation classes were given to girl students of traditional university to take up employment generating programmes and studies of societal relevance. This project also function as a counselling centre for promoting women scientists to enter in to the science and technology mainstream and for orienting college and school students to technologies and agricultural programmes of societal relevance. In collaboration with NABARD promotion for setting up activity groups under the Women Flower societies is initiated. More than 700 rural farmwomen were benefited through the project activities during the period of report.
