

Baking soda can remove pesticides from fruit skin

BOSTON

Washing apples with baking soda could help get rid of pesticide residues on the surface of the fruits, making them safer for consumption, a study has found. Washing the produce with either plain water or bleach solution was found less effective, scientists said. PTI