A panel of seven individuals is seated at a long table covered with a red cloth. From left to right, there are four men and three women. They are dressed in professional attire. In front of them are several water glasses and papers. A large bouquet of white flowers is placed in the center of the table. A tall, ornate brass lamp stands in the foreground, partially obscuring the view of the table.

The audience is seated in rows of chairs, facing the stage. Several women are visible in the foreground, some wearing sarees. They appear to be listening attentively to the speaker.
